Generation Why Bible Studies for Senior High

These studies each 5-6 sessions are the Anabaptist youth Bible studies published by Faith and Life Press. They can be used as a traditional curriculum in Sunday school, midweek, or you could pick one or two lessons to focus on a particular aspect of faith or Anabaptist theology. I have selected ones that represent foundational faith teachings – there are 30 additional studies available. Go to www.mpn.net to order or call 1-800-245-7894.

Who is Jesus? Shows how youth can have a relationship with Jesus, a friendship that can change their lives.

Who is God? Focuses on the way we get glimpses of God from the Bible, God's creation and church tradition.

Take Two Tablet. Learn how the 10 Commandments are still relevant and can be a guide in making decisions.

You Can't Make Me Go To Church. Based on Acts, explore the church as a community of radical love, discipleship and sharing.

Testing the Waters. A study on considering covenant, community and baptism.

Rocky Road: Beatitudes and the Sermon on the Mount Includes teaching on salt and light, Jesus and law, heavenly teachings, beatitudes.

How to Read the Bible. Looks at the Bible from its revelation through translations and interpretations.

Pain and Praise in the Psalms. Help youth understand how God is involved meaningfully and lovingly in our everyday lives.

Fast Lane Bible Studies for Junior High

These studies are 5-6 sessions and are Anabaptist studies published for junior high. Some of the content could be adapted for use with older youth. Peace Heroes; Living the Beatitudes; Living the Lord's Prayer; Living Without Violence; God Rules; Encountering Jesus; Awesome God. To order, visit www.mpn.net or call 1-800-245-7894.

Other ideas.....

Faith Talk Cards. www.vibrantfaith.org. This handy pack of 200 cards features a question or story prompt to encourage sharing about a particular aspect of faith or church. I recommend one copy for your church library. Wonderful for beginning a committee meeting, jumpstarting discussion with youth or adults; taking on a road trip.

Journal. Give each youth a new journal as they begin Catechism. Have them fill it up with quotes, doodles, questions. Invite them to respond to a question or case study that you pose each week.

Conversation Partner. Pair each youth up with an adult in the congregation with whom they can have a trusted relationship during Catechism. If they already have a relationship with a mentor, this might be the time to breathe new life and energy into that connection. This person should be someone who has the ability to be transparent in their own faith and be able to pray for and with the youth.

Parent-Youth Retreat. Partners in Nurture: a retreat during preparation for baptism by Marlene Bogard. This retreat is included in Soul Care: how to plan and guide inspirational retreats. Herald Press, 2004. It's important to include parents as partners in faith nurturing. This retreat gives an opportunity for parents to share about their own faith and connect with their youth in a relaxing and fun atmosphere.

Invite Participation. Include youth in planning congregational worship and education. Some may like to visit committee meetings and participate in areas of church life that are beyond youth ministry. It never hurts to invite!

Share Faith Testimonies. Do your youth know your faith story/testimony? How about their parents and youth workers? Now is an excellent time to share faith journeys with youth. Hint: don't gloss over the tough stuff!

Your Church History. Invite an older church member to give a tour of the church, including all the nooks and crannies. Have them share a bit about the specific history of your congregation including major decisions and controversies. How has God been faithful? Hint: Make a good quality video/dvd presentation of an elderly person in your church telling the church's history. It is a wonderful thing to have to share with future generations.

Cemetery Stories. Ok, this is not meant to scare you, but to inspire! What would it be like for your youth to hear stories of faith and conviction in the local church cemetery? Using discretion and respect, this could be a neat time of connecting youth with the stories of the faithful that have gone before us.

Field Tripping. Invite the class to visit Mennonite institutions and get acquainted with staff and their mission/ministry: MCC, Bethel College, Hesston College, WDC/AMBS Great Plains Office, Mennonite Church USA, Camp Mennoscah.

Anabaptist Game or Re-enactments. Invite several generations to play the "Anabaptist Game" which consists of storytelling, drama and a hunt for the heretics. Some churches re-enact various historic moments of Anabaptist history by holding worship in barns and caves, and include the elements of darkness and secrecy.

Miscellaneous Stories and Curriculum

NOTE: Some of the following resources were written for children or are older publications. I list them because you may be able to glean some stories, activities, or discussion points from them. Also – they may give you a basic framework from which to structure your lessons. I suggest you scour your church library shelves and Christian Education cupboards – you might find some gems.

Coals of Fire by Elizabeth Hershberger Bauman. Herald Press. 1954.

A Leap of Faith: true stories for young and old by Peter J. Dyck. Herald Press. 1990.

Twelve Becoming: Biographies of Mennonite Disciples from the 16th – 20th Century
By C.J. Dyck, Faith and Life, 1973. Has separate leader's guide.

Neighbors Near and Far: Mennonites of European Descent. (Out of Print, but many churches may still have them) Published by the Commission on Education, General Conference. A packet of ideas and stories, recipes and games written for children but could be adapted for multi-generational use.

The Mennonite Story by Rudy Baergen. (Faith and Life Press, 1981, Out of Print) Plus Leader's Guide. It has a very good outline and content, although methodology could be certainly be spiced up.

Menno Simons Resources (compiled for his 500th birthday in 1996)

David Augsburg. Menno Simons Birthday Tales. In Festival Quarterly, Winter, 1996. pp. 7-9. Folktales, historical vignettes and biographical fragments about the venerated priest-turned-Anabaptist-elder have grown, been told and then re-told for years. Here are eight "Menno Memories." For reading aloud, retelling or for readers ages 10 and up.

Cornelius J. Dyck. Menno Simons: 1496-1561. In Twelve Becoming: Biographies of Mennonite disciples from the 16th century to the 20th century. Faith and Life Press, 1973. pp.13-20. A basic story of the early understandings of re-baptism, discovering biblical truths, hiding to save his life, Menno's wife and children and his old age. For reading aloud, retelling or for readers ages 10 and up.

Irvin B. Horst. Menno Simons, 500 years 1496-1996. In Purpose, October 6, 13, 20, 27, 1996. Horst writes four segments entitled "Menno Simons and Children," "Menno Simons and Violence," "Menno Simons and Witnessing," and "Menno Simons and Suffering." Best use might be retelling.

Dave and Neta Jackson. The Betrayer's Fortune. Bethany House, 1994. Part of the "Trailblazer Books series, this is an exciting fictionalized account of Menno Simons. For readers ages 8-14.

Jacob H. Janzen. Tales from Ancient and Recent Mennonite History. Waterloo ON, 1948. These tales offer interesting and accurate portrayals of Menno, but because of the format, would be best read aloud or told. For all ages.

Cornelia Lehn. "Blessed Are The Merciful: Menno Simons" in Peace Be With You. Faith and Life Press, 1981. pp. 48-49. A single tale taking place during Christmas, 1553 in Wismar, Germany. The Simons family, along with other believers gathered food and blankets to carry across the ice to a ship filled with refugees from the Reformed church. For reading aloud, telling, or for readers ages 8 and up.

Louise A. Vernon. Night Preacher. Herald Press, 1968. The lively story of all that happened as Menno went about preaching as seen through the eyes of his children, Bettje and Jan. For readers ages 8-14.
